

Sensitive content is just gone. Period.

Data protection is one of the leading issues for companies today, particularly because of concerns around litigation, corporate espionage, regulation compliance and privacy protection. Companies are struggling to find efficient ways to help employees get the information they need to do their job while blocking the information they don't need to see. That is where Redact-It makes the perfect fit.

Here are just a few examples of how Redact-It is used:

- Protecting privileged information in documents produced during litigation
- Removing sensitive information when submitting documents for regulation compliance (e.g., Sarbanes-Oxley and FCC 17A)
- Removing privacy and proprietary information before releasing documents or records to the press, shareholders or posting on websites
- Automatically removing privacy and other sensitive information on the fly based on user role (role-based redaction)
- Block social security numbers before sending financial documents over-seas for processing (e.g., outsourced tax services)

Redact-It features:

- Creates TIFF or PDF rendition with redacted text completely removed
- No metadata is transferred to redacted rendition
- Source file is never altered and remains secure in file system, repository or records management system
- Automatically remove privacy information and more
- Create reusable redaction scripts and templates
